Bishop lines up 2 more witnesses

By Christian E. Esguerra

LINGAYEN-DUPRAN Archbishop Oscar Cruz yesterday said he would present two new witnesses before the Senate en banc on "Jerning" allegations today.

Cruz said one of the witnesses, a male, is expected to "sustain" the previous testimony of four other witnesses who previously testified before the Senate.

"We will corroborate and confirm the testimony," the archbishop further told reporters. Cruz refused to say if the new witness was also a former gambling operator like Wilfredo "Boy" Mayor. He also declined to reveal details about the other witness, who is a male.

He said the other witness knows the late mayor and has lived with him on several occasions in a region considered a hotbed of gambling.

Cruz refused to say if the witness would corroborate the testimony of the previous witnesses. Representatives Juan Miguel "Mikoy" Arroyo and Pangloss and Ignacio "Iggy" Arroyo of Negros Occidental were also implicated by former President Duterte.

"It's just one of the things that I know and I know about the things that the other witnesses have said," he said.

Cruz, one of the least vocal witnesses under the following proceedings, had earlier admitted knowing and delivering money for gambling police General Director Bantog, who was later found guilty of gambling.

He claimed to have personally delivered money to the two Arroyos in the Manila area in the 1980s.

ARTIST Ismael Mangman works on pappas and magnifying glass to give penicillins a new twist by turning small dots on a wooden "canvas."

Artists' village showcases Cordillera culture

MANILA CITY—On a rare flood-free day in the mountains, well-trodden artist Ismael Mangman down blacked-out, spider's web-like and begins to paint, using a magnifying glass to make the sun's rays as image on a wooden plank.

Using French Impressionist techniques, Ismael's position—using small dots to create an image—a rare twist, the long-haired Mangman, 38, takes up to eight months to complete his "bejeweled" or two fields on textured plank wrapped around a mountain ridge.

He is one of the artists who play their roles in "The artist, a 2.5-hectare (6.2-acre) art center located in a former cattle pasture on the edge of Baguio City. It was set up several years ago as a showcase of the Cordillera region's native cultural heritage.

"I came here a few days ago and they welcomed me," says the artist, a French professor of English based in South Korea who also teaches in the arts. He noted one of the century-old wood and pine loggers' huts here, which he turned into a small gallery to showcase his 7500 a night.

Washing way of life

"There let me have a whole table to myself all day, when I can create and make a little piece," he tells AFP sitting on a corner table at the Yau-ma-ma, his shop to be done paint to people-made figures.

The artist's village was set up in 1997 by local painter Ben Cabrera and his friends, who wanted a place to release some abandoned loggers' huts in Baguio and Elitago provinces as part of an undertaking to preserve the vanishing way of life of the mountain people of the northern Philippines.

One of the houses is a 197-old Baguio "bodega" but which, in previous generations, people live loggers' huts actually used to have one prior to marriage to create back-patrons were built. If not was impossible, the painter was lost to get another room.

Some of the huts now serve as exhibition galleries, the display last month over the works of Mangman's-like brother, Ismael Mangman, the best living exposure of the magnifying glass-making technique.

"Our place takes its right month, depending on the weather," says Ismael Mangman, an expert paper who serves as the village manager.

Shoring wood

"This house was for the right time—it's not just the regular rainy day—and there was some on the wood. You can also have an beautiful paper or stone," he says.

When the artist went to paint at night he had the option of using a softening pen.

Ismael says, "pointing to the details takes great care. Once you make a mistake that's that's it," Mangman adds.

Hanging off a tree branch at the upper reaches of the village is a giant, bamboo-inspired spiral web-shaped installation by local artist Vito Frank. It looks made of rope, glass and wood. Called "The Dream Garden," it is supposed to protect shoppers from thieves.

From a quality carillon, the place some some hundreds of paying visitors' work, making it all something. Artists hang up to do portraits of visitors or a table and will sell work, for which the village gets commission fees. There are also, no more tickets, and coffee shop openings provide income for the village.

Two areas are very scenic and an influx of many more visitors as it is an inclusion in the best Philippine culture of the popular. Locals' these travel guide.

Following the last, some guests push here on the village, which is a chair day the blossoming waters of the South China Sea are visible, some at kilometers to the northwest.

Different services

Grade schools and big schools around the region make attendance up to the village. Some couples use the place to exchange marriage vows and families have formal receptions.

A stage performance set on the stone courtyard outside the entrance, one of the few facilities in the area, is open to all. It's a well-travelled South Korean photographer who has been recently on display.

The village holds regular workshops in paper and print-making, textile art, pottery and other media as well as traditional loggers' crafts such as basket weaving and making wine using fermented rice.

"They're probably going to sell to it now," Mangman says of the neighbors. "It's not been here before, but it's been here before, the real way was good," he adds. The parking has turned property values in Baguio's Pampanga.

Later, the French guest, says the place reminds him of a similar center in western India that has served as an artist's haven for about 50 years.

Whitman says Mangman has at least a 100-year-old art center, called "The artist's village."

Understandably, the place is not to everyone's taste. "You have to be a lot more to appreciate what they are doing up there," says Patrick Shum, a government employee of the local office of the agriculture department.

LARGEST SETTLEMENT

JP Morgan to pay $2.2-B to Enron investors

NEW YORK—JP Morgan Chase & Co. on Tuesday has agreed to pay $2.2 billion to investors of collapsed energy firm Enron Corp. in what lawyers said could end its being the largest ever ES settlement.

JP Morgan Chase, the No. 3 US bank, announced the settlement just four days after Citigroup Inc. said it would pay $1.5 billion to Enron stock and bond investors who accused the bank of helping Enron to close accounting books.

The Citigroup settlement was laid out in a court filing, the head of Enron at the University of California, said he expected to reject the offer. JP Morgan Chase said it will take a greater charge of $2 billion against its second-quarter earnings to pay the settlement and its share in litigation costs.

The bank has already written

It said it acted to eliminate the "unintentional, hidden and opaque" of further protection in litigation.

President and Chief Operating Officer Andrew Ross is known to remain in trouble containing his group's losses quickly as the New York-based firm's financial results and legal outcomes.

The class-action settlement was approved by the Board of Directors of the University of California, said JP Morgan Chase.

Major quake off California triggers brief tsunami alarm

LOS ANGELES—A major earthquake measuring 7.0 in the Pacific Ocean off the coast of California on Tuesday triggered a brief tsunami warning along the US West Coast, meteorologists said.

While the large tremor could have caused a tsunami, quake-wave surge from Ensenada in Canada, there were no tsunami reports of any damage or injuries and authorities said there was no tsunami threat.

The quake struck 30 km from the Pacific Ocean, but far from the coastline of the California coastal zone of Sonoma County. It was felt in the US, Canada and Mexico.

The Pacific Tsunami Warning Center (PTWC) said the earthquake had a magnitude of 7.0, but that the tsunami threat was low.

A giant tsunami hit Coahuila City in 1945 following a massive earthquake in Mexico, killing 11 people, destroying 20 city blocks.

Witnesses said buildings shaking along the California coast for three days in the aftermath of the earthquake.

Britain, France still at odds over EU budget

PARIS—Britain and France failed to resolve their dispute over EU budget cuts over the European Union's long-term budget, leaving the bloc facing financial headwinds as well as a political crisis.

British Prime Minister Tony Blair said it was hard to see how the differences could be bridged after talks with French President Jacques Chirac, claiming leaders of an agreement on the 2007-2013 budget at an EU summit on Thursday.

The meeting for two days with President Chirac was intended to resolve the dispute, but Blair said it was a "disappointment" that the summit did not reach a deal.

the, we used a morally apologetic attitude (and) to protect the environment in all times. The death of the 2000 protesters should not be treated as an innocent mistake, but rather, because humanism cannot tolerate the sacrifice of those who have been killed for justice.

We, too, only think that we will win the truth. All of us, especially those in a position to know, should provide the truth from the meetings at the top of our nations. Together we demand "Deep media violence: Stop the abuse of the liberal line. Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical fitness of obese women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 20 obese women who were randomly assigned to either a diet or an exercise group. The diet group was instructed to consume 1000 kcal less than their maintenance level, while the exercise group was instructed to exercise for 30 minutes, 3 times per week. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 10 weeks. The diet group showed a significant decrease in body weight, body fat, and waist circumference, while the exercise group showed no significant changes. The diet group also showed a significant increase in physical fitness, while the exercise group showed no significant changes. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet is effective in improving body composition and physical fitness in obese women.

An inspiring answer in the face of poverty

It is tempting to read Twelve Years a Slave as the story of the lives of the slaves who have been helping us, forgotten masters of science, especially at a time when we are faced again with war-torn slaves.

I really agree that the Daily Mail Program can provide a model to promote dignity and to inspire hope especially among those who are in poverty-quality education from all-around education like African. The program is a working model to be education and should be replicated worldwide.

But while noble and inspiring, the program is largely unknown.

How can we inspire hope in the present situation? How can we salvage our dignity for whatever is left of this nation?

The only way now, perhaps, would be to show that things can improve, through people. (Like our Jewish friends) and programs that are visible and successful and most importantly, programs that inspire optimism and mobility in every Filipino, in every possible way.

Through this model, our national leaders, local public and pri-

Through this model, the government can begin mobilizing its resources and outlook on a program with a simple development formula for promoting rural development, home for the landless, food for the hungry, water for the thirsty and light for those in darkness.

And perhaps, this model can attract investments in the form of growing poverty and increasing hopelessness in our country where can we do?

Turning to Jesus in times of crisis

It is disturbing and disgusting that we have been told to celebrate part of our institutions. The most disgusting conviction of these last 100 years is perhaps a thin and flimsy one: we are to be proud, and told that God can turn any who claim to be Christians into true believers.

But, environmental investigations of late have addressed less obvious, concept models of influence, simply because Congress has no power to prosecute. Those who wish to fight the global waste problem must understand not only the affecting force of corporations and political influences, but in the whole processes of criminal justice.

Boracay resorts OK ecology plans

By Blanche S. Flores

THEY have agreed to disagree on land filling, but they could not agree more on environmental protection.

Resort owners in Boracay have reached individual agreements with environmental management plans to save the island threatened by land reclamation caused by unbridled development.

At least 30 members of the Boracay Association Inc. (BAI) have submitted their management plans to the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) for approval. Following a board that they have taken over last is City of Boracay (Boracay).

The individual plans were presented after the island development plan for Boracay approved by the DENR in February. BAI chair Orlando Ibañez said.

He said the BAI participation in the Philippine Environmental Management Program showed that resort owners were serious about addressing critical environmental issues from 2000 to 2025.

"We may be as much where a states to the issue of land filling but when it comes to protecting the environment, we are one," DENR special assistant for Boracay, Zeddy Andia told the business in a phone interview.

"This is the first time in history that resort owners themselves drafted an executive plan and then required to be approved by the DENR," he said.

Andia said the plans would describe the parameters by which resort owners can comply with local, national and international laws.

Singsons warn of 'Ilocos Republic'

CORON (CEN) — Bases for Gov. Luis "Chino" Singson and ex-Ilocos Republic Gov. Manuel B. Enrile, would merge to form a new province, the Singsons have announced.

"We will come out with an Ilocos province to protect our citizens' interests," Singson, a staunch supporter of his father, said in a speech at the inauguration of the City of Coron on Monday.

"The President should not be taken without any due process. We don't want a change of government. The sentiment of the whole country is different from the sentiment of Ilocos," Manila, Enrile said.

Singson's statement during the inauguration of former President Joseph Estrada, his uncle's friend, helped bring down Estrada and Enrile's power in 2001.

Singson said majority of representatives and governors in the five provinces in the Ilocos are open to serious talking for Ilocos in the country.

Bases for Rep. Elyse Singson said the "Ilocos Republic" is not a mere response to the move to sue his father.

"It's not only a show of support, it's there is no more place for us, we would be forced to establish an autonomous region to implement our own policy and order as well as manage our economy," he said.

Governor Singson said the proposed "Ilocos Republic" would include the provinces comprising the Bases: Ilocos Sur, Cagayan, La Union, Ilocos Norte and Abra provinces.

He said the Cordillera provinces of Abra and Mt. Province, which would be part of the Bases region, would be included in the move.

He said under the proposal, the present leaders would rule the "Republic" for their own terms although they Singson said they would eventually select a common leader.

He said that they would prepare the holding of a plebiscite after the experiment pushed through.

The 1987 Constitution mandates the creation of only two autonomous regions—the Cordillera and the Autonomous Region of Southern Mindanao (ARMM).

The law creating the Cordillera Autonomous Region had in two plebiscites in 1990.

2 women presidents save old tree

By Marlon Ramos and Bernadette C. Pardo
in Manila, Luzon

A CENTURY-OLD tree (Diospyros delonix) here on the University of the Philippines at Los Baños (UPLB) campus has just gotten another lease on life, thanks to two women presidents. President Macapagal-Arroyo and UPLB President Emerita Lita Masangkay.

On Tuesday, the two administrators met in a meeting room at the UPLB campus to discuss the tree, which has been the subject of debate in the academic community for some years.

That meeting, however, proved to be the end of the tree's life.

UPLB President Emerita Masangkay wanted to take another step in the tree's life, despite the opposition of some students and faculty who have argued that the tree is too old to be saved.

At 10:30 a.m. on June 13, UPLB President Emerita Masangkay met with some students and faculty who have argued that the tree is too old to be saved. One student, however, told her she was interested in the tree's life.

UPLB faculty member Juan Arroyo, however, told her that the President had no intention of saving the tree.

The official, he said, also said Arroyo is not going to be saved from his office, which said "I don't intend to leave my office" (Arroyo's office). He said he was not a member of the UPLB.

When he said to the President's administration, however, Arroyo confirmed that he was not the President's office. He said he was not a member of the UPLB.

"We are happy because the President of the UPLB was very first. It only showed the President's greatest concern for the environment. Maybe the tree should be saved," Arroyo said.

Violence

Arroyo said she had also brought the body of her father, Hilarion, who had been accused of violence and other crimes, to the UPLB campus.

Probers say bar slay suspect could be close to car owner's family

By Tara V. Quiroz

WHILE they have yet to match a name with the face of the man suspected of killing a Schwinn bicyclist in a Midvale City bar a week ago, police yesterday said they were close to pinning the blame on a suspect.

San Francisco was called after a friend/lover of the victim's father in San Diego County, Calif., on June 8.

At one point the person and a partner were lost in the hospital.

"We are closing in on the suspect. He is getting there," said Chief Detective Michael Baines, in chief of the Midvale Police Department Criminal Investigation Division.

Close relative?

Baines said their investigation was now focused on the possibility that the suspect was some likely a close relative of the family, which had closed a number of a person that was aware could have been the suspect.

2.9M Filipinos jobless as of April

By Michelle V. Romo

THE UNEMPLOYMENT rate stood at 4.3 percent in April as 2.9 million of the country's labor force were considered jobless, the National Statistics Office (NSO) reported.

The NSO said the April figure was based on the newly adopted definition of "unemployed." The NSO said there are now three (three) in considering an individual as unemployed: a person who is at least 15 years old and is (1) reported as jobless, (2) is available for work, and (3) seeking work or not seeking work due to valid reasons.

The NSO said that if the old definition of "unemployed" were used, the unemployment rate would stand at 12.9 percent at 4.79 million. The figure would be lower than the 11.7 percent (3.5 million) recorded in April 2004.

The old definition only had two criteria: (1) without work and (2) looking for work, including those not seeking work with valid reasons.

According to NSO data, more or 40 percent of the unemployed were young individuals aged 15 to 24 years old, which covers those who just graduated from college. It said 28.3 percent were aged 25 to 34 years old, and the rest were above 35 years old.

The NSO also said that the National Capital Region posted the highest unemployment rate at 14.4 percent. Other regions that had double-digit unemployment rates were Region II (Central Luzon) at 11.4 percent and Region IV-A (Cebu) at 11.1 percent.

The government agency said that of the 2.9 million unemployed, 1.3 million (45 percent) actually graduated from college, lower 1.3 million, or 43.8 percent, graduated from high school, and 961,000, or 33.6 percent, have reached the elementary level.

Of the 2.9 million unemployed, 1.4 million said they were jobless not because they chose not to because they could not find any job available for them. They added, according to the NSO survey, that they looked for jobs either by direct approach to employers or by seeking assistance from employment agencies.

But about 1.5 million unemployed persons, or 52.7 percent of total unemployed, did not really look for work. Those who did not look for jobs either said they believed their own ineligibility for work for them, were still waiting for results of previous job applications, were already on trial job-training, were waiting to be released, or were disabled or had temporary illness.

Meanwhile, Unemployed Arrears, whose ratings are at record lows as Filipinos completed almost rising inflation and protracted recession, has promised to create 8 million to 10 million new jobs before the end of his term in 2010.

Unemployment is also a major problem in the country, with millions seeking only part-time or no jobs before their skills and education.

Under 8 million Filipinos have left the better opportunities abroad. The NSO said that such trend each year is a key source of funds for the economy, but some analysts say the migration is draining the country of doctors, nurses and other professionals.

PNOC unit seeks partner for Negros exploration project

By Abigail Noy

PNOC-EGC, National Oil Co. Inc., Development Corp. (PNOC-EGC), the country's largest petroleum energy producer, is seeking a partner to conduct oil and gas exploration and development in Southern Negros.

In a published bid invitation, the state firm said prospective partners should be "capable of financing with technical and financial capability to undertake mineral resources development."

The company should also have a minimum authorized capital stock of P10 million and a minimum paid-up capital of P2.5 million.

Due to the project's high degree of technicality, prospective partners should have at least two geologists with minimum of five years of professional experience. The geologists' credentials as well as the company's track record in mining operations and environmental management should also be submitted together with the bid.

In the case of a corporation, it should be a holder of an exploration permit, a mineral agreement or a financial or technical assistance agreement.

PNOC-EGC accepted letters of intent (LOI) and eligibility documents from interested parties up to 5 p.m. of June 13. The state firm, however, declined to disclose how many letters submitted and when LOIs, as well their status.

Parties deemed eligible to bid will be required to submit their LOI and proposed it two copies sealed envelopes. All bids must also include a bid security that will be valid on demand and valid for 120 days from the date of bid opening.

Each bid, under a check, company's check or certified check, the bid security should be at least P1.34 million. If in the form of a bank guarantee, it should be at least P2.34 million. If in the form of a surety bond, the amount should amount to at least P0.44 million.

The financial proposal and bid security will be accepted until 2 p.m. on July 5. Bids will be opened immediately after, in the presence of bidders' representatives.

PNOC-EGC produces more than 40 percent of the country's petroleum energy capacity.
